

April 2, 2012

To Whom It May Concern:

It was a tough day when I got a call from Rose Forge (a wood stove business in Brewster) that the roof on my recently purchased Brewster home needed to be completely replaced and fast. Lucky for me, however, they had already contacted Brian Daley of Brian P. Daley Construction, Inc. and he had come out to assess the problem. Meanwhile, I was 300 miles away with a stranger on the end of the line, and clearly a stressful situation at hand. The tension could not have been higher on my end. About five minutes into a phone conversation with Brian, I felt better about the entire situation. He was honest, knowledgeable and understood that this was a shock to us, both to our confidence in our new home as well as our purse strings.

After the initial go ahead, Brian and his team took on the job. He communicated daily and sent pictures each evening detailing the updated progress. The job got more complicated as the days went on, but each and every time a new expense was added, he called to confirm as well as discuss all options. Never once did I feel that Brian was suggesting something for his own monetary gain but instead, giving us options that were cost effective, well thought out and beneficial to the future of our home. After all was said and done, the job was completed within the parameters of the quote, on time and cleaned up with detail.

We have asked him to do several jobs since the spring of 2011 and I have all intention of asking Brian P. Daley Construction, Inc. to do all future jobs for us. He is trustworthy, skilled and creative. Brian and his wife Amy communicate well and are understanding of the stress and anxiety that large construction jobs can put on families. The Daley family is an excellent choice for any job, large or small and I would recommend Brian P. Daley Construction, Inc. without hesitation.

Best,

 Brewster, MA